Small Claims Case # 2003SC006117
Nancy Mistele vs. Melissa Wadsworth

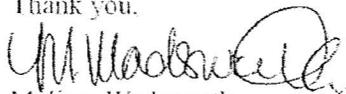

Commissioner McAndrew,

During our initial meeting on July 28, 2003 with Nancy Mistele for the purpose of vacating a judgment and reopening our case, we discussed a counterclaim. Ms. Mistele then asked for the rules regarding discovery and you spoke of a yes/no question and answer format. I received a letter from Ms. Mistele dated August 22, 2003 asking for "any and all materials" that I plan to present on October 30, 2003. This did not appear to be the type of discovery request you had mentioned. Since most of the documents I will be presenting are from former tenants or current clients, I am hesitant to send these to Ms. Mistele.

After I had signed the lease with my current landlord, Ms. Mistele repeatedly approached him and his wife (also a Monona business owner) about my lease. Eventually, she convinced my landlord to meet with her. He called to let me know that she had told him that I was still under contract with her and that I wouldn't pay him. She asked him to speculate on how I would pay two rents. She also told him that I caused problems and it was a mistake to rent to me. He and his wife told me that she is very persistent and intimidating. I am concerned about repercussions for past tenants of Signatures Salon as well as clients.

I have finally received/ completed the paperwork for court on Thursday and am turning it over to the court today. Sorry for the delay but it was beyond my control. The last of the letters was emailed to me this morning. I will bring notarized copies of many of the letters to the hearing on October 30th. I am planning on having all documents hand delivered to Nancy Mistele today, as well. I have enclosed the counterclaim breakdown and other documents for your review.

Thank you.
